Decree of Dissolution (Divorce) For a Non-Covenant Marriage

What the Decree Means to You. The Decree is the Court Order that legally ends your marriage. The Decree, once the judge or commissioner has signed it, is important because it determines the rights and responsibilities of both you and your ex-spouse. It tells the parties what they can and cannot do. If either party does not do what the Decree tells him/her to do, then the other party may ask the court for help. This is a very important document. Once it has been signed by the judge, your rights and responsibilities are affected forever.

Failure to do what the Decree tells you to do could get you into trouble with the court. This does not mean that the court will police whether you are following the Decree. It does mean you or your ex-spouse can request a Contempt Order or an Order to enforce parts of the Decree if you or your ex-spouse fails to do what the Decree tells you to do.

Getting Your Divorce Finalized. Before your divorce can become final, a judicial officer must sign what we call a Decree of Dissolution of Marriage. The Decree tells you who will get the property, who pays the debts, who gets Legal Decision-Making, who pays support and so forth.

Divorce by Default. If you are getting a divorce by default and meet the criteria to proceed without a hearing, you must repeat as closely as possible what you requested in your Petition for Dissolution of Marriage. You cannot mark something different in the Decree from what you asked for in the Petition for Dissolution of Marriage, unless your spouse has provided written consent. If you request something different from what you asked for in the Petition, the judicial officer will not sign the Decree. If you want to change your requests to the court, you must file an amended Petition for Dissolution. It is a good idea to have your Petition handy when you fill out your Decree.
